Andria Antoniou

We have Facebook to thank for Andria's membership of the band, because it was there that she first saw Classico Latino and knew that she had to be involved. Ever since, Andria has loved expanding her horizons on various adventures with us, and developing her creativity.

Rey Crespo

The idea for recording Havana Classic came from Rey, who joined Classico Latino in 2016. Whilst he loves learning about the music of Classico Latino, his suggestion of a Changuí song, a complex rhythm from his homeland of Cuba, proved a real challenge for the rest of the group - but only at the first rehearsal though.

Barbara Dzięwiecka

'Basia' has adored Latin music since her childhood, and loves the creative freedom that Classico Latino offers (whilst occasionally insisting on a metronome to make sure that things are just right). Since first playing with the band in 2015, she's thrived on the music and friendships.

Ivan Guevara

It all started with an invitation to play a song from his homeland on a Cambridge piano. Since then, rumour has it that Classico Latino's co-founder has never stopped smiling with happiness at being part of the group.

Graham Walker

Our co-founder and musical arranger never expected that Latin music would become such a huge part of his life. Among countless unforgettable experiences, he treasures performing live on Colombian TV - and witnessing a fight between a mayor and a vicar (ask him).
